RENO MUST WAKE UP.

Reno's business men are complaining of dull times, many of them insisting that there never has been anything like it since the town was a town. The State has, as we all know, been suffering from an unusual and continued season of depression, and every section in it has been compelled to bear its share. Reno has held its own better proportionately than any other place, but that is but little consolation, when affairs are not as prosperous as they might be, and it is with ourselves whether or not the town shall be as it is, or new life infused into it. There are a great many things it would pay the business men of Reno to do, and it we desire to be as prosperous and progressive as in days gone by, we must all put our shoulders to the wheel, and make new business. We have every natural advantage. Our geographical position is particularly good for commanding the trade of a large scope of country; our water facilities are grand, and it is a reflection upon our business energy to see waters of the Truckee forever going to waste. There are half a dozen manufacturing interests that should be inaugurated here, and every one of them would have the advantage of free water and cheap wood the cheapest market to buy in and the dearest in which to sell. We buy and sell enough wool and woolen goods to run two woolen mills. Our mineral resources are worthy of development, and organized effort should be made to uncover the bonanzas in Peavine and Pyramid. It will well pay the people of this section to expend some of their money endeavoring to make two blades of grass grow where but one exists at present, and there is no business sense lying supinely on our backs and waiting for something, Micawber-like, to turn up. Let us pull together to win.

THE NEVADA PRESS.

Views and Opinions Upon Current Topics and Events.

THE RESERVATION.

The Walker Lake Bulletin thinks "the Austin Revilla has very correct notions on the subject of obituary notices, but its ideas are a little astray when it comes to the discussion of Indian Reservations. There is a great deal of fine sentiment in the argument of the braves who ask to retain the little all they have left, but it simply amounts to sound. A few of the chiefs have some reason, probably vanity, for wishing to retain the reservation, but they themselves live near the whites, and live better than they ever did when dependent on their own resources.

The people of this section have been asked to practice, what Charles Read calls, the art of arts, and put themselves in the place of the Indians. It is very likely, that, in that case, a few of those, who lived by contributions from the others, would be anxious to retain the Reservation. It is our turn now, to ask those who doubt the justice and propriety of abandoning the Reservation, to put themselves in our place. We who are near the disputed ground, can see what the Indians cannot and what those at a distance do not see. We can see an immense tract of valuable land, and a beautiful lake, well stocked with fish, reserved for the use of a few Indians, who seldom avail themselves of their rights. We can see great natural wealth neglected, and sources of employment choked up, that a few Indians may, when the desire takes possession of them, lie on the sand, near the lake, until their hunger urges them to go to the settlements and beg from the whites. That they are better off among the white settlements, is shown by the preference they exhibit as to their residences. They are peaceable, and do not need to be herded as do some of the wilder tribes, and their contact with civilization is not destroying the race, on the contrary, their numbers are increasing. The increase is easily accounted for the conditions of their life are more favorable. They get warmer clothes, better food, more. It is simply absurd, to maintain a reservation merely for the shadow of a sentiment, when by abandoning it no hardship would be worked upon the Indians, in fact, they would be benefited. The State would find its revenues greatly increased, and profitable employment would be given to many people; the Indians would be as free as now to camp there, and when white men are permitted to avail themselves of the fish in the lake, the mineral in the mountains, and the rich lands in the valley, the number of Plutes making their home on what is now reserved for them will be greatly increased, while their condition will be almost proportionately improved."

TAPPI WORKS.

The Austin Revilla says: The last day or two of a Legislature is largely taken up with soft soap, taffy and presentations. Everybody from the President and Speaker down to the porter are blarneyed and given a present of more or less value. True, they have all received twice as much pay as they could possibly have got anywhere else and had a very lazy time, but the usual taffy machine must be run like a coffee mill for at least one day. Nevada did a little of this business last Winter, California just went wild over it and the man about the Capitol who did not receive a soft soap speech and a chromo would pay as a side show to a circus. The New York Legislature has just shut up shop and gone home, but before it left it gave its clerk and his assistant each a diamond ring worth $1,000, a noted lobbyist got a watch and chain worth $1,000, probably as hush money, the Speaker got a $50 pencil, one Senator had a $5,000 dinner given in his honor at Delmonico's and so on and so forth until the value of all these presents amounted to $10,000. These taffy works are great institutions.

GRANT'S LAST DEFEAT.

General Grant has suffered another defeat. The Society of the Army of the Potomac has refused to elect him its President. It is certainly a curious situation for the man who once commanded the combined armies of the United States to occupy. And now, says the Virginia Enterprise, what are all the quid nuncs going to say about it? Grant repudiated by the veterans! The mere announcement of the fact is enough to set wagging the tongues of all the anti-Grant men in the land. His chronic slanderers and detractors will enjoy what they believe to be the General's latest and most humiliating discomfiture. Very soon we shall all hear that the action of the Society of the Army of the Potomac in preferring Newton to Grant for its President is to be accounted the most significant indication yet presented to the public of the waning popularity of the Hero of Appomattox. The Democratic papers will not forego the opportunity thus offered of saying unkind things of the great captain.

Whatever ungenerous inferences the enemies of Grant may draw from his defeat for an empty honor, no one conversant with the facts will attach to it any importance. In the first place, the Society of the Army of the Potomac is a very different institution from the Army of the Potomac. That army numbered its units by hundreds of thousands, while the society—which has taken its great name—only numbers its membership by a few beggarly hundreds. At the election for President, on Thursday, the total number of votes cast was 274, and of these General Grant received 117. This is certainly not very formidable representation of the old Army of the Potomac. Paraded on the field of battle, it would perhaps furnish a picket detail for a brigade front. So, when we come to compare the actual strength of the Society of the Army of the Potomac with the army itself, it must be acknowledged that the action of a handful of veterans of that army is not to be accepted as conclusive of the sentiment of that army upon the question as to whether Grant shall receive or shall be denied respect and honor from its hands.

But there is another aspect of this question which should not be lost sight of in estimating the exact degree of importance to be attached to Grant's defeat for the Presidency of the Society. Whether with his consent or not we do not know, but he was put forward for the place by the ex-members of the Fifth Army Corps. That was Fitz-John Porter's old command, a body of soldiers who have never believed in the justice of the verdict which consigned Porter to an ignominious punishment for many years. Grant, sustained by the courage of his convictions, alone, and in the teeth of a bitter prejudice against Porter, which has its roots in army circles as well as in civil life, came out and declared that the unhappy General had been unjustly convicted. The men of the Fifth Corps, now members of the Society of the Army of the Potomac, no doubt, desired to show their gratitude to Grant for the noble stand he had taken in this matter, and they, therefore, brought him forward as their choice for the Presidency of the Society. Other feelings may have had something to do with his defeat, but he failed of election, and it is not unlikely that the Fitz-John Porter controversy arrayed the anti-Porter members against him. Nevertheless, defeated or elected, it makes very little difference. Grant was President of the Society at the only time there was special distinction in occupying the foremost post of honor and danger. When at Appomattox he declared it adjourned sine die, the great society resolved itself once more into its separate elements, and the skeleton battalion which now indulges itself in an annual junketing expedition under its colors has no power to dim the lustre of Grant's name.

THE BLUE AND THE GRAY.

As Memorial Day is now constituted a public holiday it becomes the property of all and of course will be generally observed, and indeed it is proper that it should be so, as all sectional animosity seems to have sunk in the deep sea of forgetfulness. It is proposed, says the Carson Tribune, that secret organizations of Carson turn out in the procession of the 30th instant, and if Onster Post of the G. A. R. does as those of other towns, cities and States have concluded to do, invite those who were in the rebel army to join them, why then the request for the societies to join the procession and take part in the ceremonies might well be complied with, otherwise those who claim fraternity as one of their mottoes would be justified in refusing to assist. Our remarks have no personalities in them and are merely made in the way of newspaper privilege and also because we desire to see the fraternal feeling that should exist between those who have met with arms on the ensanguined field securely bound, and that those who were spared should mingle in the same amity as (it may well be supposed) the spiritual essence of the departed have done for twenty years or more. The whole of these United States are a common brotherhood, and never again will internecine war occur on sectional questions, although very much trouble is likely to place on political matters and the oppression by the rich on the poor masses, and so let the brave defenders of the Stars and Stripes take to their hearts their erring brother soldiers, and all through this broad land let there be no Post that shall refuse to march and affiliate with those who fought under the stars and bars.

CARSON'S FUTURE.

For years we have stated, says the Tribune, that a mineral belt surrounded Eagle Valley, and during the palmy days of the Comstock mines got laughed at by the millionaires of Storey county, but as every dog is said to have his day, so do newspaper men (at least sometimes). The Houston mine is a mine and no mistake, and the old and much abused Athens is a mine and the Voltaire is also a mine, and all that is needed to make Carson a mining center and prove the predictions of the Tribune correct is joint effort on the part of the merchants and property owners.

Let a meeting be called forthwith and some arrangement made to establish a prospecting company, or at least create a fund that will assist those who are working in the hills west of town. There is not a ravine running into Eagle Valley from the westward where pay gravel cannot be found. From the mouth of Clear Creek to its source gold can be panned out; all the way up King's Canyon to the summit, gold, copper and silver ore is to be had for the labor, and yet the people of this town set supinely on their lounges and refuse to assist in developing property that would make Carson City the Eden of the West. These remarks may be looked on as boss, but in our desk we have specimens of ore taken from ledges in the western hills that prove all assertions made.

SETTLERS WANTED.

Every west-bound train from the Eastern States is loaded down with people coming to the Pacific coast in search of homes. Immigration societies in California, Washington Territory and Oregon are offering inducements to them hence the cause of heavy migration. This causes the Tuscarora Mining News to remark that "Nevada, although possessing in a certain manner all the advantages that emigrants will find in above mentioned localities, has made no strenuous effort to encourage the settlement of its productive lands, but to the contrary, has been devoted to its mining and stock-raising industries. This great tide of emigration has been passing us by for years, has been building up and populating the States and Territories washed by the Pacific. As was the case in other days, they move on to their destination unconscious of the fact that the cars are gliding by agricultural fields and the very opportunities they are going to the end of their journey to find. In other days the ox teams passed thoughtlessly over the rich alluvial soil of Nebraska, Dakota and others then regarded far Western Territories until the broad Pacific bared further progress. Had no ocean been in the way the prairie schooners would have rolled on and even the golden opportunities of California and her sister State Oregon would have been disregarded and left for another time. Nevada can offer flattering inducements to the would-be settler; opportunities just as assured and certain as those he would go further to find, and it certainly behooves us as a State to take a deeper interest in the settlement and cultivation of our vast domain. Emigrants are carried away with the idea that the sagebrush flats of Nevada are barren, non-productive wastes, while in reality, where water can be obtained for irrigation purposes, they soon become the most desirable and the most productive. Where proper cultivation prevails, our lands are fabulously productive and the great western railroad system that is sure to wind its way through every productive agricultural district will soon make Nevada farms valuable and sought after. Our stock-raising industry is rapidly growing; in fact, rapidly assuming gigantic proportions, while the agricultural interest is lagging simply for lack of encouragement and attention. Bring the farming districts of every portion of the State prominently out. Represent them to western home seekers and encourage them to take hold and cultivate the land. Thousands of hard-working honest Germans who would gladly accept such opportunities pass by them unconscious of their existence. Independence and Owyhee valleys contain thousands of acres of the finest land that only requires a little work to place it under cultivation, and with every natural requisite at man's command for the building up of prosperous, pleasant homes. The snow fall is extremely light and the weather far more pleasant than that of many productive districts east of the Rocky Mountains. Bring emigrants to such places and in a few years a change will be wrought in our history that will be both beneficial and permanent."

Time and Expense Saved.

SCHOOL SUPERINTENDENT.

No Reason Why He Should Not Teach Under His Own Jurisdiction.

RENO, May 21, 1883.

ED. JOURNAL.—That Superintendent Young and all the legal talent of this State agree in the one opinion that the County Superintendent may not only teach in his own county, but also advise the expediency of such measure, is the best of proof concerning its legality—the Gazette's opinion notwithstanding, which seems to have been materially changed within the last few months. Established precedent alone in California, Nevada and other States confirming the opinions, should dissipate the pretended opinions of the few.

Because the County Superintendent of Public Instruction is the auditor of teachers' claims is no reason why a teacher should not be eligible to this office, nor is it in violation of a single principle of our Republican Government. In no sense is the County Superintendent, as auditor, a check upon teachers who work for salaries virtually audited by a Board of Trustees.

Our best School Superintendents have in all instances been teachers, and never have they been accused of neglecting their duty in either capacity, nor will the Gazette affirm that the present incumbent, in nature's order of evolution, is the exception.

Moreover, the Superintendent, should he teach, is supposed to be qualified to criticize his own work in school.

The duties of the County Superintendent, though of the greatest importance, are also limited. As a matter of equity his salary is limited, and by no means sufficient to support him without other employment. No person could be inconsistent enough to ask the County Superintendent to give all his time to this one office for the meager compensation received. The experience of the past is sufficient proof that the County Superintendent may act in the capacity of teacher with perfect harmony and satisfaction.

The schools of this county require a Superintendent familiar with school affairs—a teacher in the best and broadest sense. They require a man well versed in the powers, duties and prerogatives of each and every department of the office, and a man who will preserve the educational honor of our teachers. In short, the Superintendent must be an educator and reformer, with qualifications requisite to meet all the demands of the office without the aid of a proxy.

For the good of the schools and the community we regret the loss of our present efficient Superintendent, whose place it will be hard to fill. We urge, however, that the Board of County Commissioners appoint as his successor a man intimately associated with the cause of education. As school officers are usually so are the teachers and likewise pupils. EDUCATOR

BED-RIDDEN AND CURED.

W. E. HUSTES, of Emporia, Kansas, says that his wife had been sick nearly seven years, and for the last four months bed-ridden. She has been treated by a number of physicians and only grew worse. Her attention was called to Dr. Pierce's "Golden Medical Discovery" and "Favorite Prescription" which she commenced using. In one week she could sit up, and in three weeks could walk about. By druggists.

A Beer Drinker.

John Denning says they have a man at Glendale who is willing to wager $50 that he can drink 37 glasses of beer in succession. Who wants to bet?

Advice to Mothers.

Are you disturbed at night and broken of your rest by a sick child suffering and crying with pain of cutting teeth? If so, send at once and get a bottle of Mrs. Winslow's Soothing Syrup for Children Teething. Its value is incalculable. It will relieve the poor little sufferer immediately. Depend upon it, mothers, there is no mistake about it. It cures dysentery and diarrhoea, regulates the stomach and bowels, cures wind colic, softens the gums, reduces inflammation, and gives tone and energy to the whole system. Mrs. Winslow's Soothing Syrup for Children Teething is pleasant to the taste, and is the prescription of one of the oldest and best female physicians and nurses in the United States, and is for sale by all druggists throughout the world. Price 25 cents a bottle. feb. 21-sw-lyr.

Are You Exposed

To malarial influences? then protect your system by using Parker's Ginger Tonic. It strengthens the liver, and kidneys to throw off malarial poisons, and is good for general debility and nervous exhaustion.

You can keep your hair abundant and glossy, and retain its youthful color, with Parker's Hair Balsam.

MURDERED IN MER RED.

Jenny McDonald is Instantly Killed by a Ball From a Springfield Rifle.

The Candelaria True Fissure, of Saturday last, gives the annexed particulars of an awful tragedy at that place, saying:

Between two and three o'clock this morning three loud reports of some kind of fire arms were heard in the lower part of town. They were so much greater than a pistol, it was the subject of much conjecture as to what could have made them. It appears that Edward Rafferty, a tinsmith, had been indulging somewhat during the evening, and who, though he disclaims any knowledge of the affair, seems to have had much to do with the shooting. Jenny McDonald, the murdered woman, has been numbered among the fallen women of Seattle, Washington Territory, San Francisco, Bodie, and latterly of this place, and was living in a house at the eastern end of the town. A man was in the house with her at the time of the shooting, and he says they both heard somebody at the rear of the house where the bedroom is situated. There seemed to be two or more persons on the outside, Rafferty's voice being distinguished quite plainly. He was on the opposite side of the room from the bed, when suddenly he heard a loud report and saw a flash through the window, situated on the side of the house at straight angles to that from where the report came. Jenny was on the bed and reclining on her right elbow. The man was so much frightened by the loud report, that he was completely dazed and was some moments in

REALIZING WHAT HAD HAPPENED.

When he recovered himself he looked at Jenny, and saw that her under jaw had fallen, then he quickly perceived that she had been shot. He ran out of the house, very badly frightened, and sought assistance in some of the saloons, which were still open. On retracing his steps to Jenny's house, he was about to enter at the back door, when another shot whistled very unpleasantly close, and caused him to beat a retreat across the street. The third shot was fired from some place in Chinatown, doing no injury. The murdered woman was found in very much the position as described above, with the blood and brains oozing from a fearful wound completely through her head above and behind the ears. The bed

WAS A MASS OF GORE

And life was extinct, her death having been almost instantaneous. The assassin fired at random, but seemed to know well where the bed was and meant to aim low enough to hit any person who might be upon it. The bullet passed through her head, through a partition, where it left some of her hair on a garment hanging there, and dropped on the floor in the adjoining room, where it was afterwards found with some of her hair still clinging to it. A search was made for Rafferty, at once, he being found below town near the road to Columbus. His pursuers were obliged to be very cautious as he was armed with a Springfield rifle. As they came up he dropped to his knee and begged loading his gun, and when secured he had a box of loaded cartridges in his possession. He was lodged in jail and is to have an examination to-day, the result not being known at the hour of going to press. The body of the dead woman has been cared for by her friends and will probably be buried to-morrow.

AN INQUEST WAS HELD

To-day and resulted in a verdict that the deceased came to her death by a gunshot wound, inflicted by some person or persons unknown to the jury. There are two more men suspected of taking a part in the murder, one of whom is named Charles Richardson. He was here last night, and was seen in Columbus this morning, whether he had fled. The officers have gone in pursuit of him. Rafferty said to-day that Richardson was the one who did the shooting.

A Remarkably Stupid Slander.

The San Francisco Monitor says, referring to the following allusion which was made to the divorce case recently decided in favor of Mrs. J. G. Fair:

"Mrs. Fair, nee Miss Rooney, has obtained a dispensation from the Pope, and it cost her a good slice of her alimony. She, being a good Catholic, would not violate the canon prohibiting divorces, and it costs money to set aside the laws of the Church."

The Firleymanian who perpetrated the above remarkably stupid slander against the Catholic Church is an ignorant and vicious vagabond whose falsehood is so palpable that it needs only to be read in order to meet the immediate condemnation of every intelligent person. What the Church refused to do for kings like Henry VIII, she will not do for anybody, nor could all the money in the Fair family procure the sanction of the Church for either party to marry again as long as the other lives. The Church of God does not sell her Sacraments for gold. She blesses the matrimonial union of pauper and prince with the same nuptial Mass, and the binding obligation of marriage is a bond that cannot be broken even by bonanza kings, no matter how many mines they may own on the Comstock. It was necessary for Mrs. Fair to take legal steps to secure for herself and her children the legitimate share of the Senator's wealth, and this she could do without asking Pope or priest about it, but to say that "she got a dispensation to be divorced" is the assertion of a double-dyed detractor prompted by the devil.

Stings of Insects.

The juice of the red onion is a perfect antidote for the stings of bees, wasps, hornets, etc. If applied freely soon after being stung, it gives almost instant relief. The sting of the honey-bee is always left in the wound and should be extracted before applying the onion juice.

TO THE CITIZENS OF RENO.

I HAVE BEEN A RESIDENT OF YOUR town for three years, and outside of my own business have not seen a decent pair of boots that were made here. In order, therefore, to extend to everyone facilities for obtaining really first-class boots and shoes, I have sent to San Francisco for two A. No. 1 mechanics, the best to be found in the country, and shall run (as heretofore) a prime first-class shop. This arrangement of my stock and facilities will entail heavy extra expense, and I look and trust, therefore, to Reno's citizens, and all the people generally desirous of obtaining the very best of workmanship, to aid me with their increased patronage. First-class material, first-class workmen and first-class work, at living rates, is the motto of my coat of arms inscribed on the banner floating from my castle walls. Respectfully, H. F. PAVOLA.
